CORONAVIRUS: UPDATE CMS DIRECTS NURSING HOMES TO RESTRICT VISITATION NATIONWIDE

March 17, 2020

Foulston has produced a series of issue alerts as we continue to monitor the evolving COVID-19 situation and provide additional guidance. Please find all updates and our latest resources available here.

In the rapidly evolving response to the Coronavirus Disease 2019 (“COVID-19”) pandemic, the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (“CMS”) issued updated guidance to nursing homes on March 13, 2020, directing all nursing homes nationwide to restrict all visitation immediately. Thus, nursing homes must not permit visitors or non-essential healthcare personnel into facilities except in certain compassionate care situations, such as an end-of-life situation. Facilities need to notify potential visitors to defer visitation until further notice (through signage, calls, letters, etc.).

Individuals who are permitted in the facility for compassionate situations must be limited to a specific room only. These visitors should be required to perform hand hygiene and use Personal Protective Equipment (“PPE”), including facemasks. All decisions regarding visitation during an end-of-life situation must be made on a case-by-case basis and include careful screening of the visitor for fever or respiratory symptoms. Any individual exhibiting symptoms of a respiratory infection (fever, cough, shortness of breath, or sore throat) must not enter the facility at any time.

Healthcare workers who provide care to residents (e.g., hospice workers, EMS personnel), should be permitted entry into the facility if they meet the CDC guidelines for healthcare workers. CDC guidance for restricting access to healthcare workers is found here.

If a state implements more stringent visitation requirements than CMS (e.g., a governor orders that all visitation to nursing homes should be banned), CMS will not cite a facility as out of compliance with CMS’ visitation requirements. Therefore, facilities should also regularly monitor their state agencies for any further guidance or restrictions on visitation. ADDITIONAL GUIDANCE

In addition to the visitation restrictions, CMS developed additional guidance to nursing homes for managing the COVID-19 threat to their vulnerable resident populations. CMS' recommendations include the following:

- Cancelling communal dining and all group activities (including internal and external group activities).
- Actively screening residents and staff for fever and respiratory symptoms.
- Reminding residents to practice social distancing and perform frequent hand hygiene.
- Screening all staff at the beginning of their shift for fever and respiratory symptoms, including:
 - Actively taking temperature;
 - Documenting the absence of shortness of breath, new or change in cough, and sore throats;
 - If a staff member is ill, directing them to put on a facemask and self-isolate at home; and
 - Identifying staff members who work at multiple locations and actively screening and restricting them appropriately.
- Instructing those individuals who are permitted to visit on limiting physical contact with residents (e.g., no hugging or handshaking); proper hand hygiene; limiting surfaces touched; and using PPE where available.
- Communicating through multiple means to inform individuals and non-essential healthcare personnel of visitation restrictions (e.g., through signage, letters, e-mails, recorded messages).
- Permitting residents to access the Ombudsman program. Such access should be restricted as set forth above, and facilities should facilitate resident communication through other means.
- Advising any individual who has entered the facility to monitor for signs and symptoms of respiratory infection for at least 14 days after exiting the facility and to self-quarantine and immediately notify the facility if symptoms develop. Facilities then should immediately screen any individuals who had reported contact with the visitor.
